As I've mentioned in previous lectures and the final project details, you will choose your formatting guidelines based on your target publication location. If you have a place in mind already, then look up their publication guidelines. If you don't, then you might want to look at similar papers you found in your literature review to see where they're published, and then look into that publisher. You should pay special attention to the citation method they require, which sections need to be included, and what header, font, and font size are required. I'm not as concerned about some minor formatting details, such as using LaTeX instead of Word.

Please list the publication location/format you've chosen (journal title, etc.) and briefly summarize the formatting guideline items mentioned above. If you cannot find publication requirements or guidelines, let me know. Feel free to reuse work you did in the orientation module here.
